Shoots Self After Killing Wife and Wounding Sheriff

Ernest Rieker Calls Reporter and Shoots Himself, Gasping That He Loved His Wife and Baby and Knew Nothing About Her Getting a Divorce.

Asbury Park, N. J., Feb. 24 (AP).—Ernest Rieker, who yesterday killed his wife and wounded a sheriff in South Langhorne, Pa., today fired three shots into his body after he had called a reporter of a local newspaper to tell him "all about the South Langhorne shooting."

The shooting occurred in the Berkeley Carteret Hotel, where the man registered last night.

When the reporter entered the room, Rieker said he was the man wanted in South Langhorne and that he would tell his story of the shooting. He held a large calibre automatic pistol in one hand.

The reporter on a pretext left the room and called the police. While he was telephoning Rieker turned the pistol on himself.

"I want to make a confession," Rieker gasped to the reporter.

"I loved my wife. I loved my baby. I knew nothing about her getting a divorce until yesterday."

"I went to the Ocean Grove Tabernacle last night, so God would forgive me for shooting my wife.

"I was going to jump into the ocean but I wanted to tell my story to a reporter."

Kills Wife, Wounds Sheriff.

Doylestown, Pa., Feb. 24 (AP).—An all-night search failed to reveal the hiding place of Ernest Rieker, who yesterday shot and killed his wife and seriously wounded Sheriff Abram L. Kulp as he was about to be served with papers in a divorce suit.

The sheriff had gone to Rieker's home in South Langhorne, near here, to serve the divorce papers and also a warrant sworn out by his wife charging assault and battery. Rieker, a native of Trenton, N. J., and employed there, is alleged to have ejected his wife from their home and refused to allow her to take their two-year-old child with her.

Mrs. Rieker had spent Tuesday night at the home of her father, C. D. Oakley, a wealthy retired farmer, across the way, and had returned to her own home when she saw the sheriff drive up. When Kulp had served the papers and was preparing to leave the house Rieker fired four shots into his wife's head and breast, killing her instantly. Then turning the pistol on the sheriff, Rieker felled him with a bullet in the abdomen.

Leaping down the front steps to the street, Rieker shot his final bullet through the window of his father-in-law's home, and escaped in a motor car parked nearby.

President Signs The Radio Bill

Government Now To Control All Channels of Radio Transmission—Commission of Five Members to Be Appointed.

Washington, Feb. 24 (AP).—The 700 odd American radio broadcasters, who daily and nightly fill the ether with an admixture of jazz, health and Bible talks, speeches, travelogues, operas and bedtime stories, are at last under the guiding hand of the federal government.

President Coolidge yesterday affixed his signature to the bill which establishes government control over all channels of interstate and foreign radio transmission and there remains only the selection of the five-man commission provided in the measure and Senate approval of its make-up before actual supervision of the air begins.

Several hundred names of men from every section of the country have been suggested to the president for the commission and this list is now being studied with the hope of finding five nominees who will, in the president's opinion, stand the best chance of confirmation. The names are expected to be sent to the Senate within the next few days.

Attacks Begun On Jenks Bill

Mullan-Gage Law Dressed Up In A New Suit of Clothes Says Cuvillier In Attacking Bill To Provide Manslaughter For Sale of Poison Liquor.

Albany, N. Y., Feb. 24 (AP).—Attack was begun in the Legislature today on the Jenks bill to provide manslaughter as the punishment for the sale of poison liquor for beverage purposes. Assemblyman Louis A. Cuvillier, Democrat, of New York, assailed the measure as nothing more than a re-enactment of a state prohibition enforcement law leading to "civil war," and objected to its advancement to the order of final passage. It will come up again on second reading Monday night.

"This is purely a re-enactment of a state enforcement law" Mr. Cuvillier declared. "It is the Mullan-Gage law dressed up in a new suit of clothes, only it goes much further than the Mullan-Gage law went. Whereas violation under the Mullan-Gage law was a misdemeanor, violation of this proposal would be a felony.

"So far as the provision that a person who sells liquor resulting in death is guilty of manslaughter, we already have a law which covers this and no one knows it better than Mr. Jenks.

Edmund B. Jenks, Republican, of Broome, introducer of the measure and veteran leader of the legislative dry forces, interrupted to ask Mr. Cuvillier if he wanted persons to be poisoned by alcohol unfit for beverage purposes.

"I believe," Jenks said, "that you were one of those who voted for a memorial to Congress asking that something be done to stop the poisoning of alcohol. Were you sincere in your vote, and do you really want to prevent people from being poisoned?"

"I am against the government deliberately poisoning anything to be sold and drunk, either legally or illegally," Mr. Cuvillier replied "This is stronger than the Mullan-Gage act ever dared to be, and I think it is a gesture, pure and simple."

BILL FOR ROAD ACROSS WEST POINT RESERVATION

After negotiating an agreement between the State Department of Highways and the War Department at Washington, Senator Walter Westall, Republican, of Westchester, has introduced a bill in the Legislature providing for the construction of two and one-half miles of highways across the West Point reservation. The purpose of the bill and of the road is to obviate the long delays occasioned to automobilists by reason of the cadets' target practice.

Senator Westall stated that only a short time ago he was held up for three hours at West Point while the students banged away with machine guns at targets erected on the West Point grounds. The agreement reached by the War Department stipulates that either the present road leading around the reservation or the new road to be constructed will be kept open at all times.

Rabbi Rose Talks To Kiwanis Club

Compares Washington and Lincoln in Scholarly Address—Club Elects Delegates to Internatoinal Convention.

At the regular noonday luncheon of the Kingston Kiwanis Club held at the Governor Clinton today, Rabbi Morris Rose, Ph. D., of Temple Emanuel, Kingston, brought a seasonable message on Washington and Lincoln. He presented a very scholarly treatment of the resemblance between what he called "the outstanding products of civilization in this hemisphere."

In spite of very obvious elements of external characteristics, Dr. Rose said, the two great Americans were alike in the courage of the revolutionary tendencies, which retained all that was best in the European ideals of government and society and at the same time availed itself of all that was good in the newer ideals and aspirations of statesmanship.

His presentation received keen attention of the Kiwanians and he was accorded an enthusiastic expression of appreciation at the close of the address.

The club elected its president, J. I. Gifford, and Clarence Rowland, its vice-president, to be the delegates to the coming International Kiwanis Convention at Memphis, Tenn., June 10. Fred Chidsey, secretary, and Ed. Bonesteel were elected alternates.

Among the interesting features of the song program under the direction of Paul Zucca, Dr. Crispell rendered an original extemporaneous translation of one of the popular songs, which was as surprising as it was pleasing.

The attendance of the members was unusually large and a number of out of town guests enjoyed the hospitality of the club.

Engineers' Nerves Being Destroyed

By Careless Automobile Drivers at Grade Crossings—Sunday is the Engineers' Day of Dread and Many Lay Off.

Champaign, Ill., Feb. 24 (AP).—Careless automobile drivers are destroying the nerve of locomotive engineers, H. W. Howard, Champaign, an engineer for 40 years, told those attending the highway short course of the University of Illinois.

"The sensation of sitting in a cab and watching a locomotive plow into an automobile load of people is a terrifying experience," he declared.

"Sunday is the engineers' day of dread. Many of our engineers lay off Sundays, fearful of these horrible grade crossing accidents. There is always the possibility of a bad wreck of the train itself with more than a chance that the engineer, as well as the passengers, will meet with sudden death. If the automobile goes under the locomotive a derailment is almost certain. In 1926 twenty-seven derailments occurred, killing 59 enginemen and injuring 138 passengers."

Find Bodies on Burned Tanker

New York, Feb. 24 (AP).—Bodies have been found in the hulk of the burned British oil tanker, Black Sea, which is beached on Red Hook Flats in the harbor off Brooklyn.

A wireless message from the tug Resolute, which is standing by the tanker, to police headquarters today requested that a police launch be sent to the scene.

The police launch "Gypsy" with nine men on board reached the tanker ten minutes later and two bodies, presumably those of seamen, were found on the port side of the steamer. The starboard side of the craft was still red hot, after yesterday's explosion off Bayonne, N. J., and firemen and policemen were unable to determine whether there were other bodies in the wreckage.

Shanghai Strike Is Called Off

Orders For Execution of Persons Now Held as Agitators Cancelled—Chinese Apologize For Shelling of French Concessions.

Shanghai, Feb. 24 (AP).—The general strike of Chinese workers here, which at its height involved more than 100,000 workers and caused some 30 of its fomentors to be beheaded, was called off today by the general labor union.

Simultaneously with the ending of the strike, General Li Pao-Chang, defense commissioner of Shanghai for its nominal master, Marshal Sun Chuan-Fang, cancelled his orders for execution of persons now held as agitators.

One of the last acts of General Li's "rules of terror" by which he attempted to prevent the spread of the walkout was to raid a meeting of Kuomintang (Cantonese party) leaders inside the French concession and carry off 27 of the participants to his military headquarters in the native city. Their fate had not been disclosed.

The situation here was further eased when Chinese authorities apologized to foreign consuls for the shelling of the French concession Tuesday by a Chinese gunboat which attempted to bombard Marshal Sun's arsenal by firing over the city. The shells fell short, damaging buildings in the French concession and in the native city.

In proclaiming the end of executions General Li said "I am touched by the numerous executions by my subordinates. They were prompted to take this step by my orders to execute on the spot, without question and without trial. This order I now rescind."

General Li's proclamation concludes by requesting that all workers resume their duties without fear.

As many of the strikers returned to their jobs, 1,200 marine arrived on the transport Chaumont from San Diego, Cal. American forces here now total about 2,300 men. In addition, five American men-of-war swing at anchor in Whangpoo river, which has been transformed into "battleship row" before the richest city of the far east, and four more United States destroyers were on their way here, three from Manila and one from Pagoda Anchorage in southern China.

Port Natal is on the northeastern tip of the Brazilian mainland, about 150 miles north of Pernambuco. The distance from Fernando to Port Natal is approximately 125 miles.

Commander de Pinedo, who first achieved international notice with his record-breaking flight from Rome to Tokyo and return, began his present adventure from Gagliari, Sardinia, on February 13.

Unable to Shake Doctor's Story

Detroit, Feb. 24 (AP).—After grilling for nearly 30 hours Dr. Frank R. Loomis, held in connection with the clubbing to death Monday night of his wife, police today admitted they had been unable to shake the man's profession of innocence, or to uncover a possible motive for the slaying.

Dr. Loomis held to his story that he discovered his wife's body in the sun parlor of their home after returning from a walk, but officials claimed they discovered a number of discrepancies in his statements. He stated, they said, that he did not touch the body prior to their arrival at the house, but was unable to account for blood stains on his clothing. He also told conflicting stories regarding the route he took on the walk, according to the officers.

No Necessity for Visit to Mexico Or Nicaragua

By the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, Secretary Kellogg Writes Chairman Borah After Consulting With President Coolidge—Borah Apparently Still Thinks Trip Desirable.

Washington, Feb. 24 (AP).—After consulting with President Coolidge, Secretary Kellogg has written Chairman Borah indicating that the Administration sees no necessity for the projected visit to Mexico and Nicaragua by the Senate Foreign Relations Committee.

The secretary, who is ill at his home here, said the committee could obtain full information regarding the situation in those two countries from two state department officials who were directed to appear before the committee at its session today.

They are Stokley Morgan, chief of the department's Latin-American division, former American charge in Nicaragua, and Williamson S. Howell, Jr, of the Mexican division.

Secretary Kellogg's communication apparently did not cause Chairman Borah to change his mind as to the desirability of his committee going to Central America during the recess of Congress, and he was prepared to press for action on his resolution.

Chicago, Feb. 24 (AP).—Ten stalwart policemen won a two-round argument over Oscar Battling Nelson, former lightweight champion, when he was arrested last night in his home on a Montana larceny warrant.

Round one found two coppers trying to enter the house Nelson barred the door and refused to come out.

For several days the police have held a warrant sent here by Sheriff Angus McLeod of Silver Bow, Mont., accusing Nelson of the theft of a movie film of his fight with Ed Wolgast seventeen years ago.

DIVORCE SUIT BAFFLES JUDGE

Portland's Chinatown Is Stirred Up Over Case Involving Aged Leader.

Portland, Ore.—Old Moy Back Hin, unofficial ruler of Portland's Chinatown, taps his gold-headed cane nervously as he goes about his accustomed haunts and silently calls forth maledictions upon his enemies. For evil days have fallen upon Moy in his old age. After years of ease, years in which his word has been law among Portland orientals, years in which his western fortune has brought him all the delicacies and luxuries of the Far East, Moy finds himself in trouble and his riches threatened.

It all comes of a divorce suit that has been filed against Moy, who is Chinese consul in Portland, tong leader and business man and whose wealth is said to exceed $1,000,000. It is just such a case as might be expected to come out of the mysteries of Chinatown and is as near a sensation as the impurturbable Chinese allow themselves.

Moy has an unusual defense, but a complete one in case its truth is established; he says that Leong Ho, who brings the divorce suit, is not his wife. On this contention he rests, although Leong Ho has passed as his wife many years and says she was married to him in far-away Canton in 1897. Ng Shee, says Moy, is his real wife and Leong Ho is only his housekeeper.

Has Judge Baffled.

Oriental complexities make the case a great puzzle to the white man's court in which it has been filed. John H. Stevenson, Circuit judge, who listened to the preliminary evidence, admitted that he was completely baffled. He did not grant Leong Ho's petition for suit money and attorneys' fees, because it might be proved that she was not Moy's legal wife. Neither did he deny her petition, but postponed action until the prominent lawyers who have been retained by both sides make an effort to unravel the tangle. Leong Ho says that Moy is a millionaire and has an income of $5,000 a month. She is asking for $25,000 attorneys' fees, $10,000 suit money and $500 a month as temporary alimony.

Around the household of Moy, which holds a place of pre-eminence in Chinatown, is the shadow of mystery. Leong Ho in her divorce suit says she has borne Moy three children, only one of whom, Pearl, is now living. Moy has other children, these, she says, are by a former wife. Moy, in turn, contends that Leong Ho is not the mother of any of his children, but that Ng Shee, who, like Leong Ho, has lived in the Moy household, is not only the mother of Pearl and the two other children claimed by Leong Ho, but of two others besides. Ng Shee, Moy says, bound her feet for so many years that it is difficult for her to walk, so he engaged a housekeeper. The housekeeper, he adds, is Leong Ho.

Lawyers connected with the case have been delvin through the musty and almost undecipherable records of Chinatown and have also sought documentary evidence in China in order to get at the real facts on which the future disposition of Moy's American-made fortune now hangs.

Moy Says Little.

Beyond the representations made by his attorneys, the venerable Moy, who is over seventy years old, has little to say. He has been a familiar figure in Chinatown for many years. Formerly he was a contractor and carried through big undertakings. His fortune grew and among other properties he is joint owner of a large down-town hotel. As Chinese consul he has watched over the welfare of his fellow countrymen and has gone bail for hundreds of them when they have got into trouble. But Leong Ho does not picture him as the benevolent despot that the public has considered him. Wife-beating and cruelty are attributed to him in the divorce complaint.

Meanwhile there is an unusual air of expectancy in Chinatown. The Orientals are waiting to see what the white man's court will make of it all, and they are waiting to see what effect the present suit will have upon the house of Moy Back Hin, which has held its position of leadership among them so proudly. The curiosity does not stop there, however, for thousands of Americans knew old Moy personally and they, too, are wondering what kind of a solution will be reached in this intricate Chinese triangle.

Only Landlady Able to Get Cain Out of Jail

Albany, Ore.—Everybody in Albany has not read his Bible recently. This fact is vouched for by the local police blotter.

An ex-service man named Harry Cain was trying to make someone understand his name over the telephone. Finally the landlady came to his rescue. "Cain," she shouted into the telephone, "C-a-i-n. You know, the man that killed his brother."

The person at the other end got busy at once. Here was a murder. He called the police and Harry Cain was in jail in a few minutes. He had to call his landlady to the jail to explain the matter before he could be released.

CO-ED PEELS POTATOES BY TON TO GRADUATE

Iowa Girl to Receive Gold "Spud" With Degree in Honor of Her Fight for Education.

Indianola, Iowa—Peeling, preaching and harvesting their way through school, three Simpson college women are diploma-bound.

A gold potato will be given Garney Holman of Mount Ayr, Iowa, with her diploma when she steps out of college in June, to remind her that she pared her way through 1,500 bushels of tubers in dormitory kitchens to an education.

The pulpit will be abandoned for the schoolroom by Marie Cassell of Fairmount, Ind., who has preached two sermons a Sunday in the Friends church of Indianola, to earn her way to junior standing.

Shocking wheat, plowing and picking potatoes have yielded revenue for an education to Carol Sandy of Indianola, who each vacation treks to the North Dakota prairies to win money enough in the harvest field to carry her through another year at Simpson.

The gold potato will be given to Miss Holman by the school.

"If I had it all to do over again," she avows, "I'd rather peel potatoes than earn my way in any other fashion."

She must mean it, for the school offered her a "white-collar job" and she turned it down. She is the daughter of a retired farmer.

"The dreams I've had while the parings fell, and the questions I've settled about life while conducting an excursion through a pan of potatoes, are worth about as much as the education I've received," she says. "It's foolish to say that a student who earns his way doesn't enjoy his college years."

Preaching isn't all that Marie Cassel does to earn her way. She leads the weekly prayer meetings and supervises the young people's work. She holds that the present generation is the best that ever lived, and getting better.

In evolution she keeps to the middle of the road.

Steamship Captains Have Queer Hobbies

Tacoma, Wash.—When is a ship captain not a ship captain? When he is raising silk worms, collecting rare woods, weaving lace tapestries or painting marine pictures. Sea skippers are supposed to be busy most of the time taking observations or writing up the log, but masters of numerous French liners touching port here have various hobbies.

Captain Cochrill of the Marseilles has a hand loom in his cabin upon which he weaves out delicate, valued lace tapestries, carrying intricate and beautiful designs.

Captain Le Baron of the Georgia is a talented artist, exhibiting numerous marine paintings here recently. His ocean colors are true and his technique striking.

Captain La Roche of the Rheaburque collects rare species of wood to incorporate into small pieces of furniture.

Captain Corbin of the Alaska raises silk worms on his farm in France under subsidy from the government.

Captain Simon of the Mississippi has a bent for raising chickens and carries an incubator on board to hatch out special collections of eggs.

A collection of world-wide butterflies adorns the quarters of Captain Ducheune of the Notre Dame de Fourviere.

Several other skippers carry with them monkeys, canaries, parrots, turtles, goats, dogs, and cats.

A peacock is a beautiful bird, but it takes a stork to deliver the goods.

KINGSTON, N. Y., FEB. 24, 1927.

Sweden and Belgium are reported to have formally agreed never to make war on each other for any reason. A good example, even though some of their neighbors may rather lightly esteem the virtue of those altogether removed from temptation.

According to a Massachusetts editor, "with Dr. Butler taking the wet end and Senator Borah the dry end in the Republican party, the Democrats have not had so much cause for cheerful dreams since their own ranks were split by the Ku Klux Klan in the Madison Square disaster of 1924." What about the equally lively dry and wet "ends" within the Democratic party itself?

Have we aviators in action in Nicaragua as well as marines? "American aviators in Nicaragua," says the Springfield Republican, "scoff at charges that women and children had been killed by their bombs, which one of them calls 'small explosive packages—bombs by courtesy'. But a bomb too courteous to hurt women and children could hardly have a great effect on soldiers."

It is reported from West Nyack, N. Y., that a concern there engaged in denaturing alcohol has been dumping 200 gallons of by-product a day in a nearby stream and "so potent is the Government's prescription" that the two-million gallon reservoir into which the stream flows has been "tainted" and residents of the towns served complain of a "seedy" taste in their water. Why should the dumping of such a "by-product" or any other into a stream flowing into a reservoir be permitted?

Secretary Hoover is of rather stout figure and no doubt possessed of considerable muscle but he must have been a bit arm-weary as well as a little short of breath before he had finished helping everybody to a generous slice of that "600-pound" pie at the Washington dinner of the California State Society. It appears that the colossal pie was made of thousands of particularly fine prunes from a ranch in California. Prunes are generally recognized as a good and wholesome food, but doesn't the wonderful State of California produce something that would be rather more alluring in the form of pie?

ARE THERE NO AMERICANS?

There was objection in the Senate to the appointment of "a plain American" to be Minister to the Irish Free State on the ground that such a position should be occupied by "a prominent Irish-American." If this policy should be adopted, an Italian-American would have to go to Rome, a British-American to London, a Jugoslav-American to Belgrade and so on. But are there enough hyphenated Americans for the purpose? More than enough, as some see it, for it would appear from recent announcements that we are all hyphenated, remotely if not recently, and there is really no such thing as a "plain" or American-American. Within a few days we have been told that both George Washington and Theodore Roosevelt were "Swedes," notwithstanding the fact that they themselves were confident of their English and Dutch descent respectively. It has been "proved" in books written for the purpose that the Belgians settled New York, not the Dutch, and that the Irish won our Revolutionary War, not Americans predominantly of English descent with the help of the French.

But the most all-embracing claims are made by The Concord Society, one of the branches of the Steuben Society. According to this authority, it was not Columbus who discovered America but a German named Christensen; not a Dutchman who bought Manhattan Island from the Indians but a German; Thomas Jefferson was not the real author of the Declaration of Independence but the Germans of Mecklenburg, N. C.; it was not George Washington who carried the War of the Revolution to final success but a German of the name of Steuben. And it seems that the same wonderful story was told in the war of 1861-5. That war finally was won, not by the superior number of Americans in the North and West, but by Germans—witness the Confederate records of the capture of so many prisoners who could speak only the German language. It appears that even the late World War was won by a German of the name of Pershing! One is reminded of the reported claim made in Germany that, though Shakespeare may not have been a German in blood except perhaps very remotely, he was obviously a German in spirit and consequently the Fatherland had a right to name him as a son.

Although there are ponderous tomes and many voices raised to prove that there never has been and even now there is no such thing as an American, some of us—perhaps as many as a hundred millions of us—persist in believing that there has been and is, and that the genuine Americans rather than the alien groups won our independence and made this a great country.

NEW FATTENING CURE

Sandow the strong man used to eat some taffy before doing his work of heavy lifting. Half way through his performance it is said that he ate more taffy.

At the resting period in athletic games it is not unusual now for the players to eat taffy or some form of milk chocolate.

I have spoken before about the value of sugar in these individuals who have undergone a severe illness and were slowly convalescing.

And now an Austrian physician, Dr. Depisch, has been able to exhibit to his professional brethren a number of patients whose weight has been rapidly increased after prolonged illnesses by a very simple method.

About three ounces of ordinary sugar is dissolved in a quart of water and the patient eats, or rather drinks, the entire amount.

Three to four hours after taking the sugar, in a normal person, this much sugar sometimes causes hunger and often pallor and palpitation of the heart.

However these weak sickly patients, recovering from an illness, when given a sugar breakfast as described above, develop the hunger of a wolf and are able to take a surprising amount of ordinary food about four hours after taking the sugar.

The sugar can be dissolved in very weak tea flavored with lemon juice if desired.

The increased hunger is due to an excessive production of insulin stimulated by the large dose of sugar.

In some instances the increased hunger does not appear before the third or fourth day of the experiment.

The increased output of insulin, and the improved appetite, continue for some time after the sugar breakfast has been stopped and the patients thus easily and rapidly gain in weight.

Dr. Depisch states that in cases of stomach irritation, or where there was still some infection in the system, the taking of the sugar did not always give results.

This new "fattening cure," as it is spoken of in the Lancet, should be investigated thoroughly as it is apparently a "rapid and easy" method of acquiring flesh as a result of a natural hunger for food.

When Tyranny Met Death

STUBBORN refusal of a tyrant to interrupt a carousal to read a message of warning brought about his death and in consequence Thebes became one of the greatest cities of Greece, and Sparta, overlord of the country, was humiliated.

Thebes had been delivered into the hands of Sparta by the treason of Leontiades, a polemarch of the city, who opened its gates and delivered the Thebans to their foes before they were able to strike a blow. Prominent Thebans fled to Athens where a little group of patriots began plotting to recover their city. Armed resistance was beyond their power and discouragement settled upon them.

At Thebes Leontiades and his friends, Archias, Philippus and Hypates ruled with the support of a Spartan garrison. One night while Archias and Philippus were feasting, a message was delivered to Archias containing news that seven conspirators had arrived in Thebes and would visit him disguised as dancing girls intending to slay him and his guest, Philippus. The messenger insisted that the missive was urgent, but Archias declined to read it, declaring that he was bent on pleasure and business could wait until tomorrow.

Into the room were led three "high-born damsels" and four attendants garbed as females. Archias selected one and raised her veil to behold a bearded face. Before he could exclaim in surprise, a dagger was thrust to his heart. Philippus fared likewise, as did a third guest, who attempted to interfere.

The seven conspirators among whom were Pelopidas and Epaminondas, who were later to become famous as the leaders of the great revolt of all Greece against Sparta, then hurried to the home of Leontiades, whom they killed in the presence of his wife, and then to the home of Hypates who fled to the roof where he, too, was slain.

Next morning news of the tyrants' deaths spread through the city and the citizens arose to expel the Spartan garrison. The achievement of the daring conspirators had given Thebes its freedom and all the liberty-loving cities of Greece were inspired to rise and throw off the yoke of Sparta.

Treat Colds 2 ways at Once

MEDICAL science tells us: "To avoid a BIG cold, stop a little one."

And here's the ideal treatment: Take a rest, a laxative, a light diet, and rub Vicks on throat and chest.

Vicks acts on colds two ways at once: (1) Its medicated vapors, released by the body heat, are breathed direct to the inflamed air passages; (2) it stimulates the skin like a poultice.

Use this treatment at the first sign of every little cold and big colds will be almost unknown to you.

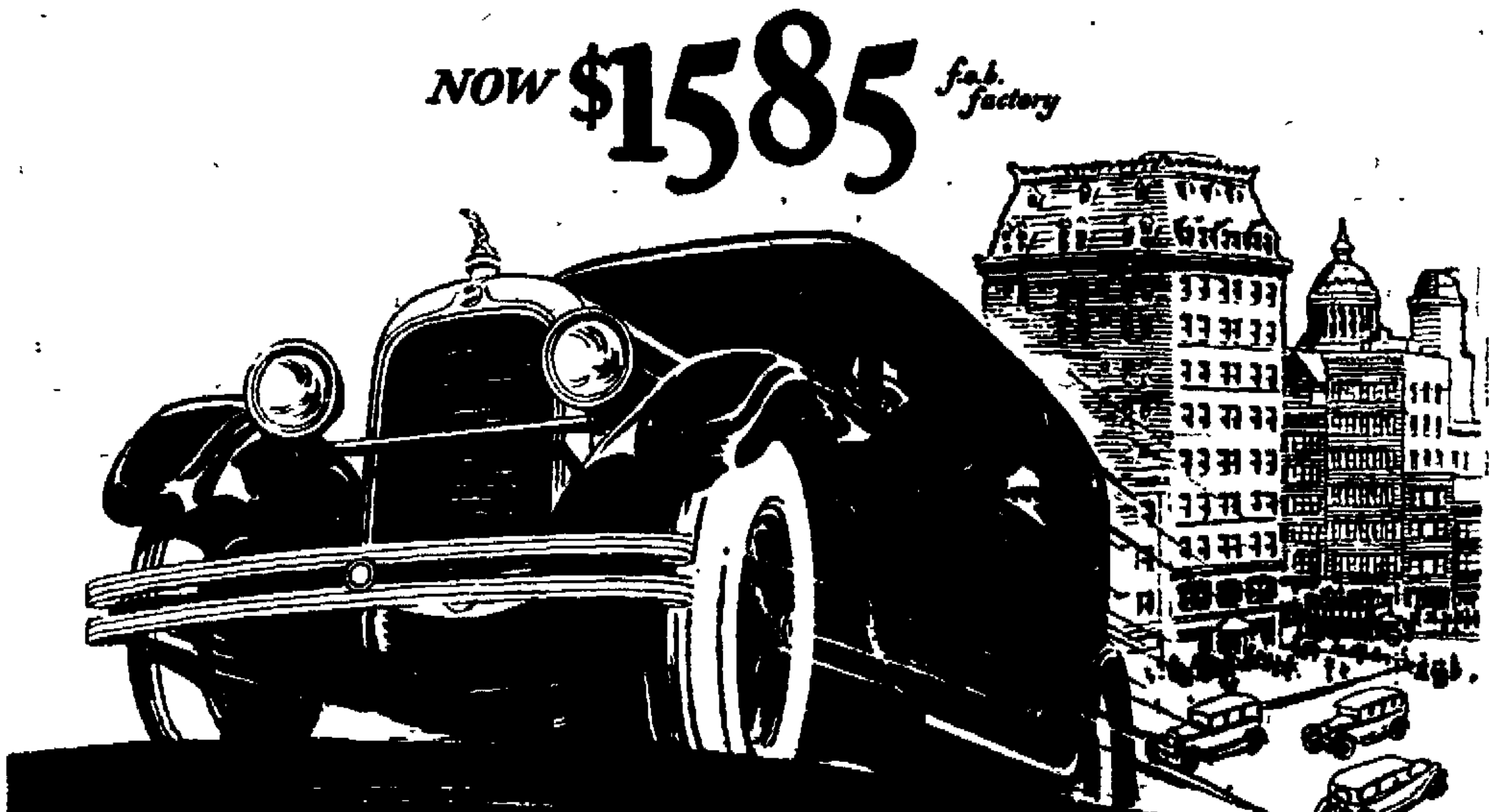
There's DRIVE behind the beauty of THE COMMANDER

NOW $1585 f.o.b. factory



IF ever a car had what American business calls DRIVE, this Big Six Brougham has it. Studebaker has never built a faster, safer automobile—more speed than you'll ever need, more real riding luxury than you've ever experienced.

You are captain of the boulevards and master of the open road when you sit at the wheel of this Big Six Brougham—commander of thrilling power that only seven American cars can equal, and they cost from two to five times more.

The Commander will idle smoothly or take the throttle for acceleration at 3 miles per hour. It will sweep from 5 to 40 miles per hour in 18.4 seconds. It will deliver 70 miles an hour carrying four passengers. It will return from 15 to 18 miles to the gallon of gasoline under normal driving conditions.

Try it yourself—take this car out today. Put it against any test you want. Then you'll know why the Studebaker Big Six outsells every other car of equal or greater rated horsepower.

At its new low price of $1585—this Custom Brougham is the latest triumph of Studebaker's One-Profit manufacture. Never before has a Big Six four-door enclosed car given so much and asked for so little!

Daddy's Evening Fairy Tale

by MARY GRAHAM BONNER

BUDS AND TREES

"A little girl named Beatrice was walking along the other day," said Mother Nature, "and I heard her speak of the little buds and the little leaves on the great big trees.

"She was having a walk with a friend of hers and they were enjoying all the blossoms that had come out and all the ones that were about to come out.

"They enjoyed seeing the birds and the green grass and all the lovely things that Mistress Springtime packs in her many trunks and brings along with her

"But it did amuse me to hear her speak of the little leaves and the big trees, but it only shows how sensible the trees are.

"Now some objects would say:

"'We're too big and you're too small and we don't want to be bothered with you.'

"They would miss a great deal that way but there are many like that.

"They want everything in size and kind just like themselves But the trees know that the little leaves are so pretty and dainty and springlike as they are.

"And they know, too, that the leaves will grow to be just right as leaves for trees.

"I was busy at the time, or I would have liked to have thrown Beatrice one of my special hugs and kisses right away.

"I did throw her one just a little later and though she did not know that I was sending it to her, she understood.

"People who love the out-of-doors understand so much they can't quite put into words.

"Beatrice felt how beautiful the spring was and how lovely it was with the soft air and once or twice she spoke of the feeling of the out-of-doors on such a day.

"Then one time she spoke with more enthusiasm than ever and she said:

A Walk With a Friend.

"'Oh, it just makes me feel all made over again on a day like this. It's so perfect.'

"It had been just before then that I had sent her the kiss and the hug, and though she had not known just what it had been that made her feel so happy she knew that there was something unusual about the day and the feeling of the out-of-doors. . . .

"I sent it to her because I did love her little remark about the little leaves and the big trees, and because I thought her such a dear, and because I could see how she loved me even if she did not recognize me just exactly as I am.

"I knew her name was Beatrice because I heard the friend calling her by this name, though at times she just called her B. And I knew how she loved the out-of-doors from the way she spoke.

"And I wish that perhaps she may come across this little talk of mine for I would love to let her know how much I had thought of her, just the little bit I saw of her.

"She had blue eyes and golden hair and pink cheeks and a laugh that sounded like music when it trills, and a voice that just seemed to belong to the flowering springtime.

"If ever she does see this I hope she will know, even more than she did before, how much Mother Nature loves her."

"What does he look like?"

My Powder For Girls

By Edna Wallace Hopper

Countless girls and women asked me about my powders. I did not supply them at first. In fact, I was paying $5 per box, and only stage stars will do that.

But now I am having these powders made by the hundred thousands boxes. And those boxes now sell at 50c and $1—the powders used by movie stars, the finest that skill can produce. All toilet counters supply them in my name.

There are two types. One is my Youth Cream Powder—a heavy cold cream powder that clings and stays. I use that type. Many women prefer a light and fluffy powder, so I have the same powders made in that way, and the price is only 50c.

Let me send you some samples on little vanity tabs. Let me treat you to the finest powders in the world. Mark and clip the coupon now.

SEASONABLE DISHES

Bananas are to be found in almost any market at any season of the year.

Baked Bananas.—Remove the skins from five bananas, cut in halves lengthwise, and put into a shallow pan. Melt two tablespoonfuls of butter, add a third of a cupful of sugar and two tablespoonfuls of lemon juice. Baste the bananas with one-half the mixture. Bake 20 minutes in a slow oven, basting during the baking with the remainder of the mixture.

Fillets of Beef With Bananas.—Cook the fillets cut one and one-quarter inch thick and arrange on a platter, pouring over them the liquor from the pan. Saute quarters of bananas in a small amount of butter until cooked and place a piece of banana on each fillet when serving.

Banana Sponge.—Line a mold dipped in water with crosswise sections of banana and fill with the following mixture: Mix a half-cupful of corn starch, one-fourth of a cupful of sugar, and a fourth teaspoonful of salt; add gradually a fourth of a cupful of milk. Add a quart of scalded milk, stirring and cooking for eight minutes, or cook in a double boiler for 15 minutes; add a teaspoonful of vanilla, and the whites of three eggs beaten stiff. Chill thoroughly and remove from the mold. Serve with a custard made from the yolks of the eggs.

Banana Salads.—Mix finely cut bananas with canned or fresh cooked green peas and French dressing. Serve in the banana skins on lettuce.

Canterbury Chicken.—Cook three and one-half tablespoonfuls of butter with one of finely chopped onion, until yellow, stirring to prevent burning. Add one tablespoonful of cornstarch and one and one-half cupfuls of chicken stock. Bring to the boiling point, add one-half tablespoonful of lemon juice, three-fourths of a teaspoonful of salt, a few dashes of paprika, one-half cupful of celery cut into small pieces and one and one-half cupfuls of chopped chicken. Serve very hot, garnish with toast points and parsley.

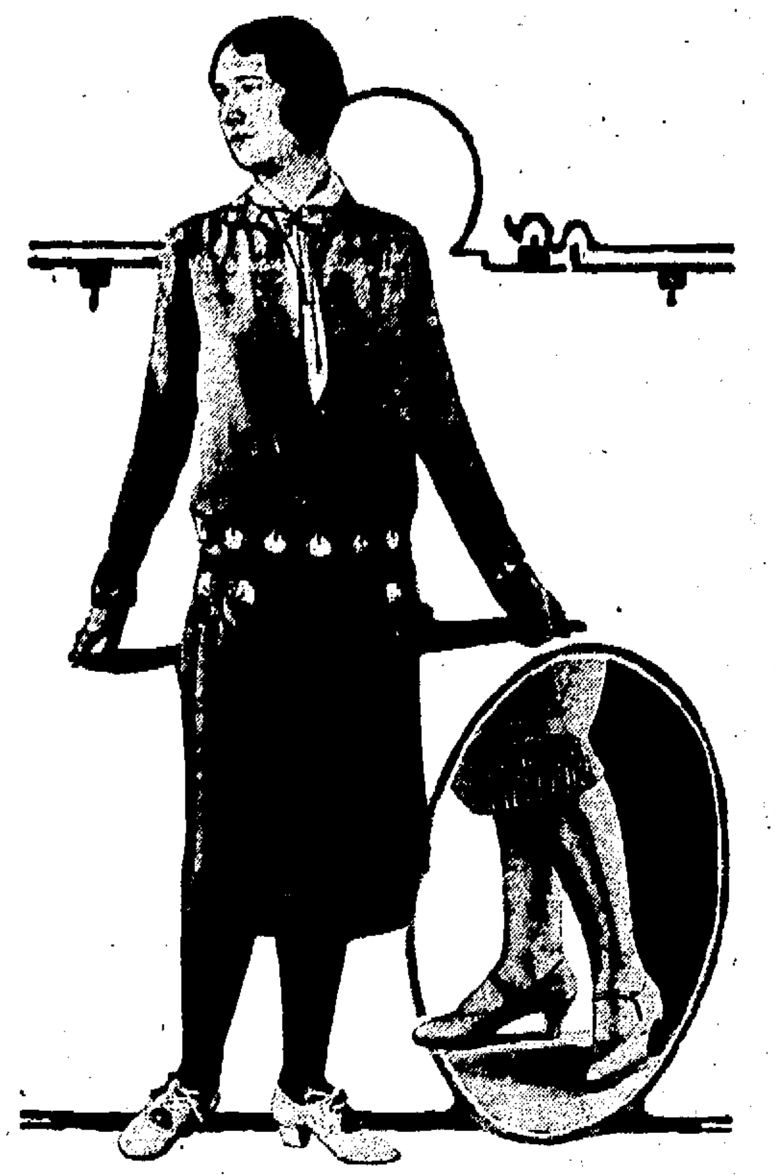
SHOE STYLES GROW VARIED FOR SMARTLY DRESSED FEET



IN FRONT of windows filled with spring and summer shoes, women are clustering like bees about a honeysuckle bush—studying the new styles industriously and enthusiastically. Their footwear consciousness has been developed very rapidly during the past few years and they are quite as mindful of the clothing of their feet as they are of their millinery. Meantime shoe styles have grown more complicated and much more greatly varied than they ever were and the element of becomingness has grown to be vastly important in them; it is stressed in all shoes except, perhaps, those for special sports wear, and even these must consider the element of style.

Besides the usual black and brown shoes for the street, there are new light browns, beige, parchment, honey, gray and gray-beige that harmonize with fashionable colors in suits or costumes, and are inconspicuous. But the color range is much wider and includes sauterne, blond and bois-de-rose as well as pastel colors in very smart oxfords. These are provided for those who are particular about choosing a color to harmonize perfectly with the costume. But kid leather in the brown, beige, gray-beige, parchment and honey shades, contributes shoes that will fill all ordinary requirements. Pumps seem to be cut a trifle higher than they were and oxfords somewhat lower, and becomingness depends upon cut.

There are a good many shoes of reptile skins—or of leathers that look like them. The alligator, the lizard and numerous snake skins, very often in combination with plain leathers, add interest to the collections of spring footwear. These may or may not be genuine, the innocent kid and calf, for all one knows, may be masquerading as lizard or rattlesnake—if so, the imitation is so clever that no one is the wiser. The utmost luxury is reached in these smart shoes combining two leathers. For sports or semi-sports wear linen and kid skin are shown in white, brown, beige and in white and brown combinations. Shoes made of braided strips of leather are popular with sports frocks and so are white "saunter oxfords" like those worn with a smart jumper frock. The slippers shown in the oval are of bois-de-rose kid skin and appear to have a fanciful emplacement of lizard skin as a finish.

For evening wear metallic brocades, in slippers appear to lead. There are many black satin slippers with touches of gold or silver and handsome rhinestone buckles have lost none of their prestige. Metallic kid and brocades are combined in some of the smartest evening slippers.

About the best choice for mid-summer wear with all one's day dresses, is the kid shoe in beige, gray-beige, parchment, honey or light brown, with stockings and gloves to match in color. Even the street hat is often chosen with reference to the color of the shoes, and these matching accessories worn with tailored suits or frocks insure a chic ensemble.

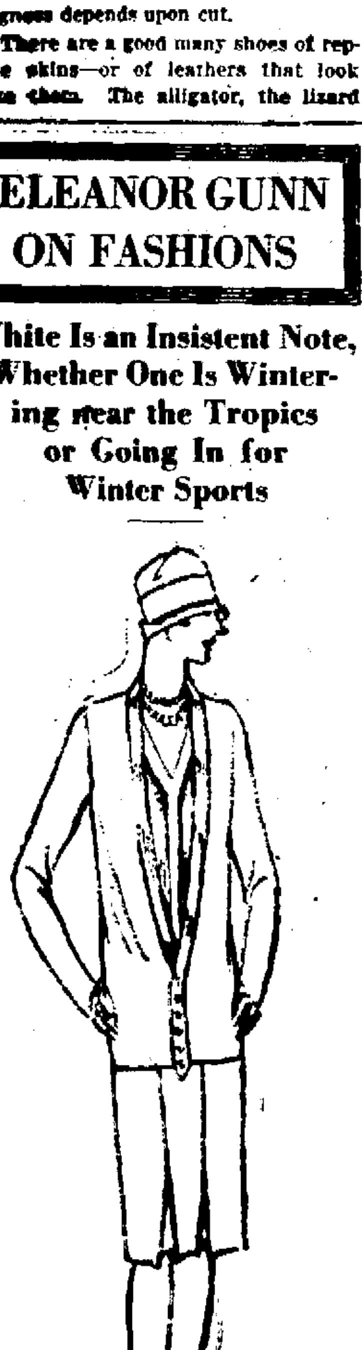
ELEANOR GUNN ON FASHIONS

White Is an Insistent Note, Whether One Is Wintering near the Tropics or Going In for Winter Sports



This Ensemble Is Made of Delicate Pink Cloth and Satin, and Consists of a One-Piece Dress with Upper Portion Made of Satin Trimmed with Bandings of the Cloth, and a Cloth Skirt. The Cloth Jacket Reverses the Effect by Trimming of Satin Bands. The Felt Hat Matches the Frock in Color with a Touch of Deeper Shade of Rose on the Wide Band.

Cairo, Egypt.—With a goodly percentage of the world sunning itself in the south, and a certain percentage going in for winter sports, while others stay at home doing the work of the world, or enjoying home life, costume interests necessarily vary. It is an axiom that one half of the world likes reading about, and knowing of, the other half.

It is also true that those interested in fashion are forever peering into the future; consequently, real fashion interest today lies in what is being worn in the South. For, whatever is worn there is a charming prelude of what we ourselves will wear later on.

That white is worn seems rather important, for the feeling has been intense for color. The craze for white started in Paris, and for evening wear. It brought in its wake a feeling for brilliant white frosted effects achieved by spangles, beads, or silver embroidery.

Then white crept into color schemes and ensembles, until it became a factor for sports clothes. Not that it is not always to some extent a factor there, but it appears rather more important and refreshing now, because the smart and the near-smart world has been so surfeited with color. Ever since Paul Poiret journeyed to Morocco and returned to Paris saturated with the brilliant color of that French protectorate, color has been rampant in fashion. Many an inspiring idea is traceable to an African source. Tribal head-dresses have become fashionable hats—with variations, of course—and barbaric colors have become modish ones.

This is by no means contradictory to the feeling for white. All through the East, certainly in northern Africa, white is an insistent note. It occurs in the beautifully-wound turbans and the robes of the Arabs, and is always present in any native, as well as any smart gathering.

Modified Tones Chosen for Late Winter, Spring

By a quirk of fashion, raspberry promises to be one of the most popular shades in the late winter and spring. Wild raspberries and wild cherry are also modish selections. Popcorn, a light yellow, and gooseberry green, are shades being selected for the southern resort season, as are cameo pink and a soft, greenish blue, known as vert de gris. They call these muted tones, for while they call to you, they don't yell at you.

The honeymoon is over when hubby stays out all night with a "sick friend" and comes home minus his pay envelope.

Wash Out Early—Pearl St., woman says:

Since I've been using Rinso in my washer even the dirtiest spots come right out of the clothes with just a wee bit of rubbing. And the wash is ready to be hung out long before noon on Mondays. Rinso certainly gets the wash whiter than I was ever able to get it before—even when I boiled it. And it's so safe! Besides, Rinso is real economical, too—it goes so much farther than other soaps that I use it for all my cleaning, such as dishes, floors, woodwork and bathroom tiles and basins.

Mrs. Allison H. Winney,
122 Pearl Street,
Kingston, N. Y.

Millions use Rinso. Thousands write us letters like this.

Look at this wash -whiter than ever yet it wasn't scrubbed or boiled just soaked so gently!

YOU, too, will be astonished—to see a whole week's wash soak whiter and brighter than you could scrub it!

With Rinso you actually save yourself all hard work on washday. No steaming kitchen—no washworn hands.

For you don't need to rub and rub until your hands are red and swollen. You don't even need to boil the wash unless you like to.

Rinso whitens without boiling—sterilizes, too! Soaks the grimiest wash brighter, cleaner than ever.

Cuffs and edges come snowy with just a gentle touch—they don't need to be rubbed over and over until they're frayed. Clothes last longer, of course, when they're washed this gentle way!

Economical, and so safe

Rinso is all you need to do the week's wash. No bar soaps, chips, powders. This granulated soap alone gives thick, creamy suds even in hardest water.

Tests prove it safe. Contains no acids, bleaches or harmful chemicals. You could soak your finest cottons and linens in Rinso suds for weeks without weakening the fabrics.

Try Rinso next washday for a whiter wash. Feel how heavy the package is. Rinso is not fluffy chips, but real granulated soap.

Best in washing machines, too!

The makers of 30 leading washers recommend Rinso for safety, and for a whiter, brighter wash. Why not try it? For economy, for best results, follow the easy directions on package.

The Granulated Soap that Soaks Clothes Whiter

Two-Piece Sports Dress Is Made of Silk Crepe

This charming two-piece sports dress of silk crepe should appeal to many women. It is smart and plain and dignified.

One-Piece Frock Again Winning Milady's Favor

One-piece frocks are again coming into favor. With the new one-piece dress return smart little jackets of matching material of velvet.

The modern one-piece dress is not, however, the straight-lined affair worn a few seasons ago. It is made with a suggestion of the low-placed waistline and usually has a skirt decorated with inverted plaits, tucks, tiers, aprons or godets. Most often the fullness appears at the front of the skirt only since the back of the frock must appear slender-fitting and seem to be drawn rather snugly over the hips. Wide, tight hipbands are well thought of by the smart modistes who are featuring the one-piece frocks in preference to simple jumper models.

As to sleeves, they continue long! Set into narrow armholes the newer models appear to gradually gain fullness until they reach the wrists where they gather into narrow wristbands. Collars may be V-shaped, square in front and rounded at the rear, high, or of the girlish turn-down type.

Sleeveless velvet jackets, embroidered in colors or plain are being worn over one-piece dresses in the home these chilly days.

What to Wear to Add That Individual Touch

What can a woman wear to add that smart "finishing touch?" What can she do that will make her individual—add a something that will give her the long-for individual stamp?

Gowns, hosiery, slippers, even jewelry all conform to a certain ever-changing style, but that "finishing touch" is a matter each woman must decide for herself. The smart woman gets it and rejoices, the other woman just misses it.

Look in the glass and decide for yourself. No one can help you. It must be your own original thought that will add the thing you need. Try arranging a scarf at your throat some new way. Take beads and twist them in some odd fashion. Get a piece of chiffon and make a bow of it for your shoulder, your hip or even the edge of your skirt.

Give yourself an individual air. Do all that fashion demands and then add your own personal touch and you will be smart.

WHAT THE GRACIOUS HOSTESS SAYS:

By DELLA THOMPSON LUDES

SUPPER

THE supper to which guests are invited is a pleasant and intimate meal. One would never invite any except closest friends to supper. This meal is served from six-thirty to seven o'clock, and may be made a most delightful affair. The table is set for luncheon, with small cloths and centerpieces. Tall candles are used for lighting and preferably without shades. The tea or chocolate service is set in front of the hostess, and the host may serve his guests from his end of the table.

The Sunday night supper may be an even more informal meal by placing the food on the dining table or buffet.

There are many ways in which the gracious hostess may entertain informally, aside from the afternoon tea and the luncheon. The chafing-dish supper must naturally be a small entertainment, and only congenial people and intimate friends will be asked.

In this, as in any other simple form of entertainment, the background or setting counts for a great deal. All entertainment is more or less a play, and the stage should be set accordingly.

A small table that will hold the chafing dish and a tray of ingredients is necessary. Plates, silver and glasses or cups may be placed on another table, or on one leaf of a larger one if you are fortunate enough to have an old-fashioned drop-leaf table.

An electric chafing dish is more convenient than the alcohol, but we have used one of the latter for several years.

Many enticing dishes can be made. Here is one that goes by the ridiculous and meaningless name of rinktum diddy. This is the way we made it:

Chop one good-sized onion very fine. Strain one can of tomatoes. Fork two pounds of cheese into bits. Beat three eggs together in a bowl. All this can be done before the party. Cook the onion until tender in a tablespoonful of butter directly over the fire. Add the tomato and let it come to a boil. Stir in a pinch of soda. Place the hot water pan underneath and add the cheese and stir until it melts, then fold in the beaten eggs. Season rather highly with paprika, about three drops of tabasco sauce, a tablespoonful of worcestershire sauce, and add salt at the very last. When it is of a creamy consistency serve immediately on crisp saltines.

Ginger ale goes best of all beverages with this tasty concoction.

How It Started

By JEAN NEWTON

"TYING THE KNOT"

"DO YOU promise to love, honor and er-er-cherish?"

And the knot was tied.

Now we do not speak of getting married as looping the loop, why should we call it tying the knot? Not in any part of our marriage ceremony is there any allusion or pretense to any such literal entanglement: No, not in ours; but to make our vernacular so worldly cosmopolite, so rich with expressions gleaned from every part of the globe, even India has played a part.

Among the Brahmins of India a nuptial knot is actually tied. After the father of the bride has given her away, literally, to the highest bidder, the happy man places about her neck the Tali, a piece of ribbon with a gold thread suspended from it, and ties the knot. And this is the tie that binds; for it is the insignia of marriage and forever labels the bride with the sign, "Hands off!" And it is an indissoluble tie, a knot which cannot be untangled or cut. For these worthy people do not recognize divorce.

NEW PALTZ.

New Paltz, Feb. 24.—Mrs. Eltinge Harp is having some decorating done in her home on lower Main street.

The annual appropriation bill which has been before the legislature for several weeks and which will have a direct influence on this community because of funds provided for the New Paltz Normal School has just been passed by the legislature and now awaits the signature of the Governor. The bill in its present form adds considerably to the New Paltz budget and Dr. Van den Berg states that he is thoroughly pleased with the way in which it takes care of the Normal School.

A certificate under the assumed name business law has been filed with the Ulster county clerk by Mayrallien Gardner and Guy Gardner that they are conducting a business on Rural avenue, town of New Paltz, under the name and style, "Green Gables Poultry Farm."

Principal and Mrs. Lawrence Van den Berg have gone to Dallas, Texas, where Dr. Van den Berg will attend a meeting of representatives of teachers of colleges and also the national meeting of school superintendents. They will return about March 10.

The Ladies' Auxiliary of the American Legion, Sullivan-Shafer Post, held its regular meeting Monday evening at which time the president, Mrs. Harry Daigle, presented Past-President Mrs. R. Terwilliger with a past-president badge and also a clock in behalf of the unit. After the meeting refreshments were served and a social time enjoyed.

Last Sunday the pulpit of the Reformed Church was occupied by the Rev. Addison C. Bird of Arlington, Dutchess county.

The home of Mrs. Herman DuBois has lately been the scene of quilting bees held by the Reformed Church Ladies' Aid. The proceeds from selling the quilts are devoted to the treasury.

The Ladies' Auxiliary, American Legion, will hold a silver tea Friday, February 25, at the home of Mrs. Henry Poucher. Mrs. Delia Radley and Mrs. R. Terwilliger will assist Mrs. Poucher.

Your Income Tax

Various penalties are imposed by the revenue act of 1926 for failure to file a return and pay tax on time, and for making a fraudulent return. Distinction is made between failure and "willful failure" to file a return. For failure to file a return on time, the penalty is 25 per cent of the amount of the tax, unless a return is later filed and it is satisfactorily shown to the Commissioner of Internal Revenue that such failure was due to a reasonable cause and not to willful neglect. If a taxpayer exercised ordinary business care and prudence, and nevertheless was unable to file a return within the prescribed time, the delay is due to a "reasonable cause".

For willful failure to make a return the penalty is not more than $10,000 or imprisonment for not more than one year, or both, and in addition 25 per cent of the amount of the tax. For willfully making a false or fraudulent return, the penalty is not more than $10,000 or imprisonment for not more than years, or both, and in addition per cent of the amount of the tax in case of a deficiency.

If there is a deficiency, there is added to the tax interest on the amount of such deficiency at the rate of 6 per cent a year from the date prescribed for the payment of the tax to the date the deficiency is assessed. In addition, there is added 5 per cent of the amount of the deficiency if due to negligence, but without intent to defraud. If due to fraud, the amount added in addition is 50 per cent of the deficiency.

Card of Thanks.

We wish to thank all who were very kind during the funeral of our father, John H. Green. We are especially grateful to the Rev. Frederick W. Moot, James M. Murphy and the Veterans of Foreign Wars.

Strictly Business

A celebrated Welsh basso profundo, after years of fame, returned to his native village in the wilds of Cardiganshire A charity concert was arranged, and the world famous virtuoso was billed to sing "The Village Blacksmith" Just before the concert a local supporter came around to the artist's dressing room.

The visitor approached the artist and said: "I understand that you are going to sing a song, 'The Village Blacksmith.' Well, I'm telling you now that I am the village blacksmith and I want to say that if by any chawnce you get an encore, will you shove in an extra verse to say that I also let out bikes on 'ire at sixpence an hour?"—"Taffy Tales From Welsh Wales."

The American Legion

RADIO PUT TO USE BY LEGION POSTS

Among the many big endeavors of the American Legion this year, the radio broadcasting programs by Legion posts and state departments, the latter provided for by mandate of the national convention held in Philadelphia, are proving to be a wonderful success As nearly as possible, some state department of the Legion broadcasts each week. There are numerous Legion local posts that have weekly programs, and one post in Oklahoma City holds its weekly meetings by radio on account of the members being scattered over a large territory Radio Post No. 404 of Dallas, Texas, recently installed its officers by radio

A typical illustration of how the programs are received by the general public is the case of the Hudson county committee of New Jersey, which has been broadcasting from station WAAT (235 meters) Jersey City. The programs proved so popular in December that the committee arranged for an "American Legion hour" from 7 to 8 p m every Tuesday, and is now presenting them each week

"We give each post in the country a chance to supply talent which is made up entirely of Legionnaires," James H Clarke, county adjutant, reported to national headquarters in Indianapolis, Ind "We have post orchestras, singers, monologists, story tellers comedians and a variety of other numbers. Many of the Legionnaires have had professional experience We also include in our program short talks on the work of the Legion, making our programs both entertaining and educational."

Besides using the radio to inform the public of Legion work the Legion is now employing it to educate Legionnaires how to talk French

The lessons are broadcast from Station WRNY (the Hotel Roosevelt) from 7 to 7.15 p m each Wednesday. The wave length is 374 meters The teacher is Mlle Alice Blum, famous in the World war for teaching the troops an easy way of learning to talk enough French to answer practical purposes The lessons are especially built for the second trip to France.

When State Commander Rufus R Rand of the American Legion of Minnesota recently made a tour of the Second district of that state he was welcomed in Fairmont by 200 Legionnaires as guests of Lee C Prentice post of Fairmont, and entertained with a Legion "wedding" in which the bridegroom was held to the ceremony at the point of a bayonet, after suddenly disappearing once. The "bride" was dressed in lace curtains and wore a six-shooter The wedding notes of Hinkey Dinkey Parley Voo were followed with the Shakopee funeral dirge. The "flower girls," two husky Legionnaires, tripped along behind the padre, strewing onion peel nosegays and carrying Danish red cabbage roses, cigarettes and matches A big ring was carried on a mattress and when the padre asked if there were any objections to the "marriage," one Legionnaire insisted that the "bridegroom's" check for the ring had been returned marked "no funds."

Nominal Travel Charges for Visitors to Europe

The second A. E. F. of the Legion will offer the chance of a lifetime for veterans to visit Europe upon the nominal travel charge. American railroads have granted one-way fare for the round trip from the Legionnaire's home town to the port of embarkation. Steamship fares for Legionnaires Paris bound, range from $145.50 up. Through the co-operation of the battle monuments commission and the French government tours to all sectors of northern France and Belgium where American troops were billeted and engaged have been arranged. These tours, starting and ending in Paris, will cost from $5 to $16.50 and with one exception include a visit to one of the large American cemeteries abroad. Legionnaires will be saved more than $1,000,000 while globe trotting on the continent by the elimination of passport and passport visas.

Disabled Veterans Are Scattered Over World

According to figures announced by the American Legion's national rehabilitation committee in Washington, disabled American veterans of the World war are scattered in almost every part of the world. A total of 317 veterans are being cared for in hospitals outside the United States under contract with the United States veterans' bureau. These men are in the Canal Zone, Hawaii, Philippine Islands, Porto Rico, Guam, Canada, Belgium, British West Indies, Denmark, England, France, India, Ireland, Italy, Jugo-Slavia, Norway, Roumania, Scotland, Sweden, Wales and Switzerland.

GIRL BABIES NOT WANTED IN AFRICA

Joy in Moslem Household Is Reserved for Boys.

When a son is born to a North African Moslem, joy reigns. Every one says to the father: "God has increased thy good." If it is a daughter, the father cries: "A misfortune is born to me." But, in spite of that, the birth is celebrated on the seventh day in the presence of Gadi, the parents and their friends, and the baby is named Zohra, the flower; Saadya, the happy; Ziza, the beautiful, or Aisha, the beloved.

Yet over it all hangs the prophet's dictum: "Men are superior to women," and it is this phrase that stops all civilization and checks all progress. While his daughter is a child her father troubles himself not a whit about her, and she is lucky if her mother, his instrument for pleasure and for work, finds any time to watch over her.

As the girl grows up she is trained taught silence, discretion—and coquetry. Poetic phrases about beauty are sung to her. Later on, in spite of the Koran, which describes tattooing as "the devil's writing," she is tattooed.

When the girl is of marriageable age she is also ready for her [illegible] Her father begins to think about the dot—which he will get back—and the gift he will receive from the husband which practically amounts to a price for selling his daughter. At [illegible] twelve, then, the girl is handed over to her husband, whether she likes it or not. For a father can impose marriage on an unmarried girl. It is what is called the right of Djebr, which is recognized by law and custom.

The father may consult his daughter, but she must not reply except by a smile or by tears. If she smiles it is because she is glad to be married; if she weeps it simply means that she agrees to the marriage, though [illegible] to leave her father's house—a convenient bit of duplicity. If she should categorically refuse the man who bought her, the father would apply the law of Djebr by blows of the matraque, or Arab club.

The consent of a widow or a divorced woman is necessary, though that does not prevent her being sold by her father or her brothers, or even by her children; for in all these relations of her civil life she is represented by a proxy or ouali, who is practically her master.

The same law also permits polygamy, which is often necessary, especially among the poor; though they usually have only two wives, who are used for all kinds of work, relieving one another, since one wife would hardly be enough for the day's tasks.

Meanwhile the husband does his bit by putting on a more or less torn burnous and going—very much like an ancient Roman senator—to drink his brew at the Moorish cafe or to discourse at the Djemaa or else to look for news in the market. It is not unusual to see old men of sixty marrying girls of twelve.—Odette Godchot in La Revue Mondiale.

Duke Bouts at White Eagle Hall Scored Big Hit

Although the battles between Joe Vosdick and George Lunden and Billy Rapp and Joe Schaeffer as final and semi-final affairs were appreciated by the fans at the Duke's smoker and entertainment in White Eagle Hall Wednesday night, the event staged by Al West, the battling Greek, and Fred Durio of Poughkeepsie was the outstanding attraction for the ringworms. The battle was a thriller from the opening gong until the final taps were sounded and both boys did their best to please the audience. West is a flashy little boxer from West New York where he took up residence four years ago when he came from Greece. He is a protege of Joe Colletti. Durio was somewhat large for West but the particular style used by the New York fighter enabled him to reach Durio with many stiff blows which had him well worn at the end of the fracas. Durio uncorked a few wallops of marked velocity himself but it was evident that West could receive a hard one without being injured. The fans admired West for his aggressiveness although the tactics of Durio were not lacking when it came to leading. The New York man exhibited that he was an accomplished pugilist and both were loudly cheered for their showing.

Fast Opening Bout.

"Coke" Costello and Tony Bonacci of Saugerties opened the show and their battle certainly put the fans in a fine state of mind. They fought like Tigers and exhibited a wonderful collection of wares. The first round was somewhat slow due to a certain cautious feeling on the part of both fighters and they studied the antics of each other for the first frame. But after that they both cut loose and the battle was as exciting as any big time show.

Both Boys Go Down.

The Roy Van Buren-Kid Buck affair proved very interesting but the Kingston boy did not fare as well as when he met the Poughkeepsie pugilist on a previous occasion. In the opening round Van Buren had Buck on the ropes in the same fashion as when he met him in Pythian Hall, Port Ewen, but during the rest between rounds Joe Colletti, who takes care of Kid Buck, put a "bug" in the boy's ear and he certainly cut loose. In the second Van Buren took advantage of a count of nine when sent to the canvas by Buck. In the third Buck went to the floor due to a stiff right dealt out by Van Buren but was on his feet before Referee Cashin could begin to count. Both boys were glad to hear the sound of the final gong and returned to their corners pretty well tired out.

Final Bout a Draw.

Joe Vosdick and George Lunden, the Finn, stepped the limit in the final six round affair. Both dealt out some mean wallops but reception was about equal on the part of each fighter. Vosdick found a somewhat changed fighter in Lunden who sprung at the Saugerties fighter in knockout fashion. Joe counted on his left as in previous contests but the Finn was well aware of the fact that Vosdick had a trained left and avoided it in good style. The fight held the interest of the audience but was not as exciting as others on the card.

Semi-Final Was Slow.

The semi-final between Billy Rapp and Joe Schaffer also lasted for the six rounds but it was a rather slow encounter. Barney Montair of Poughkeepsie was to have fought Rapp but claimed that the Harlem colored boy was too heavy for him. Montair was present and made the announcement from the ring. Schaeffer who is practically a new-comer in the squared circle did well against Rapp but the Harlem lad did not seem over anxious to land any damaging blows.

Pleasing Entertainment.

The entertainment furnished by Bill Houghtaling, Dekoskie and Levine and Chris Mueller who was an added attraction, went over in fine style. Joe Colletti who appeared in the ring was also required to do his usual stunt for the fans, that of throwing a back somersault. Eddie Scherer pleased the fans in the usual capacity.

Game at S. A. Hall.

The Employed Boys of the "Y" will oppose the Collegiates tonight at the Salvation Army Hall. Following this contest the Scholastics will line up against the Young Judeas.

Dempsey Must Fight in Tourney

New York, Feb. 24 (AP).—Tex Rickard's ultimatum to Jack Dempsey has settled once and for all the status of the former heavyweight champion in the Texan's matchmaking plan.

Dempsey must defeat the winner of the elimination tournament now being staged at Madison Square Garden in order to gain a return match with Champion Gene Tunney. Otherwise the former Manassa mauler will be retired from consideration as a challenger.

"Dempsey will not meet Tunney unless he proves he is the best man among the contenders for the heavyweight title," the promoter said in answer to reports that Jack would meet the champion or no one. "By that I mean he must whip the winner of the present series.

"When I started this tournament I signed contracts with all the men entered. I agreed to give them Tunney if they fought their way to the front. They all signed under those conditions—Berlenbach, Delaney, Maloney, Sharkey, Paulino, Hansen, Munn. They are fighting honestly with that goal in mind.

"I couldn't sidetrack any of them and push Dempsey in with Tunney for the simple reason that each man could hold me to my contract and sue me for breach of it. I woldn't turn them down for Dempsey in justice to them either."

Rickard said he "didn't know" whether Dempsey is planning a comeback. He said he expected to learn Dempsey's plans from the former champion within a few days. "But he won't get anywhere with me if he insists on getting into the ring with Tunney next September without openers," he added.

VINCE COFFEY TO BOX RYAN AT ST. MARY'S.

Vince Coffey, once prominent in the boxing circles of this vicinity and the idol of Kingston fans, will appear in a four round bout at St. Mary's smoker and entertainment to be held in the parish hall, Monday, February 28. Coffey will step with an opponent from West New York by the name of Jimmy Ryan who is a fast man and expected to give Vince something to think about. Coffey has not appeared in the roped arena of late but will be in shape for the encounter.

RONDOUT A. C. NINE GETTING READY FOR SEASON.

The Rondout A. C. will again have a baseball team on the diamonds of this vicinity when the national sport begins for the season of 1927. The club has reorganized and active work begun. Uniforms have been ordered for the team and will bear the name of the aggregation that won 40 of the 54 games played last season. Phil Peters and Joe Coughlin last year's pitching aces will again toss for the Rondout A. C. this season and their work is expected to be up to the standard set by them. Joe Hoffman noted for his ability as a receiver, behind home plate, will be with the club this year and his addition is expected to be of much value to the winning power of the team.

Bugs Raymond Was Clever at Guessing

Pitchers evidently love high-sounding words. They used to tell about Bugs Raymond, who pretended that he understood all the stylish words his comrades used to spring in his hearing.

One day they were talking about a Kansas City pitcher who threw with either hand.

"Do you know, Bugs," Matty is said to have said, "that guy is ambidextrous?"

"Sure," Raymond is alleged to have answered, "he'd shoot you in a minute."

BOXING IS NOW QUITE POPULAR

Occupies Position of Prominence Among Colleges.

Boxing, a stepchild in intercollegiate athletics nine years ago, has advanced in the last few years to a position of prominence as an indoor sport among the colleges.

At the University of Pennsylvania the turnout for the boxing team and the classes in which the manly art of self-defense are taught has been remarkable. George Decker, veteran coach of the mittmen, has been forced to make the candidates for the team report at varying times during the afternoon because of the crowded condition of the boxing room.

In its upward climb, boxing has had obstacles to overcome in colleges. The clash between culture and fistiana has gradually given away until the two go hand in hand.

There is a difference between college boxing and pugilism. In the former much heavier gloves are used than in the latter and the rounds are one minute shorter. In addition, clinching and holding are not permitted and result in disqualification.

Little slugging has been indulged in with the result that science is the prevailing feature. Decker, a master boxer himself, and never a hard hitter during the days he was meeting the stars of the lightweight class, believes that the college men get more out of being able to box than to slug.

Pennsylvania, Penn State, the Naval Academy and M. I. T. formed the first intercollegiate boxing association in 1918. Only a handful of students reported at that time as compared with close to a hundred at the present time. Since the beginning of the sport as a competitive one, Syracuse, Yale, Virginia and numerous other institutions of higher learning have gone in for the sport.

Each team goes through a regular schedule, with the season continuing until March when the intercollegiate championships are held. This year Pennsylvania will meet Syracuse, Army, Penn State, Yale and Navy. There is a possibility also that either Princeton or Virginia or both will be met.

The turnout of freshmen, who are ineligible for varsity competition, has caused the formation of a first-year team with the prospect of three or four other meets.

Princeton Pistol Range One of Best in Country

Princeton has a new pistol range, considered by experts to be one of the best in the country. It is part of the equipment of the Princeton Field Artillery corps.

The new range has a unique equipment for the reclaiming of bullets. After the bullets have passed through the targets, they are deflected by three rows of specially built steel plates erected parallel to the floor and at an angle from the wall. The bullets are deflected twice, falling harmlessly to the floor behind the targets.

A concrete-lined pit seven feet deep has been provided in front of the targets into which the bull's-eyes are lowered to be scored and changed. Seven ranges have been erected. The pit is equipped with a safety device which warns the marksmen whenever an attendant is emerging from the pit.

Tom Skeptic's Chance.

"Why the cloudy countenance this morning, Tom?" questioned Mr. Anonymous as he and Tom Skeptic plied into the street car. "Bridget leave or did the furnace go out?"

"Aw, rats! I'm getting tired of paying toll on this trolley and then having to stand on my feet all the way to work," growled Tom.

"That's simple, get an auto."

"So are you simple," glowered Skeptic from an adjacent strap. "My name isn't John D. Millionbucks."

"Buy a cheap one then," countered his persistent friend, "You can get one for $100 or so."

"Yes, I suppose I could go out paging one," savagely flung back Tom.

"Advertise in the paper," said Anonymous.

"Oh! so that's what your getting at. I see a few of those boosters on the back page of The Freeman every night. I think they're the bunk. At least I'm not wasting my money."

After a few more blocks of the above, Tom Skeptic reluctantly yielded to one chance.

ST. JAMES MEN'S CLUB HELD ANNUAL BANQUET

The Men's Club of the St. James M. E. Church held its annual banquet on Friday evening, February 18, in the church dining room. A most delicious roast turkey dinner was served by the ladies in charge of Mrs. S. P. Bouton, president of the Ladies' Aid Society. Mrs. H. C. Longyear had charge of the dining room which was tastily decorated in red, white and blue.

During the dinner a musical program was given by the Hi-Y orchestra, together with vocal solos by Vernon Miller and violin solos by Frederick Broadie, Samuel D. Scudder, Jr., acting as accompanist. General singing enlivened the evening, led by C. E. Wonderly.

C. L. Dumm, vice-president of the club, was the toastmaster, and his geniality and cleverness put everyone at their ease and their best in responding to the toasts.

Dr. E. H. Loughran, president of the Federated Men's Clubs of Kingston, spoke briefly on the work of that organization. Felicitous words of greeting were spoken by the club president, William A. Schornstheimer, and by H. C. Longyear, past president.

The pastor of the church, the Rev. J. Wilbur Tetley, briefly but cordially addressed the men and introduced the speaker, the Rev. J. L. Hartsock of Poughkeepsie, who delivered a timely and able address on "The New World and Our Part in It."

Y's Men's Club Met on Tuesday

The Y's Men's Club held their regular meeting at the Y. M. C. A. Tuesday evening and in observance of Washington's birthday sang a lot of patriotic songs, transacted a large amount of business, enjoyed a pleasing entertainment and adjourned promptly on time.

George J. Ribble was the club's guest and sang several splendid solos which were thoroughly enjoyed. He was accompanied on the piano by George Flemming. Mr. Porter who introduced Mr. Ribble explained that he was from his own home town, Reading, Pa.

Elliott Davis was appointed chairman of next week's entertainment committee.

Everett Schutt was elected first vice president.

The yearly report was read by Louis Whitney which showed the club was in splendid condition and well on the road to being one of the substantial service clubs of this city.

Good Reading

Good literature has a charm incomparable, but it has also a power immeasurable in the forming or transforming of a nation as of an individual character. The people that have the cleanest, healthiest literature will become the cleanest and healthiest people. A good thought wisely expressed and thoughtfully applied is priceless for its endurance. Throw it on the winds and it will find its bourne; sink it in the deepest water and it will reach its haven, for the noblest thoughts are the breath of Almightiness, and remain imperishable to the end of time and beyond.—Exchange.

Poetic Justice

Ralph Jones, a lawyer, tells this story at his own expense:

He was employed to defend a man charged with issuing worthless checks. Jones and his client succeeded in convincing the judge and jury that the man was not guilty. He was discharged.

"How much is your fee?" the man asked Jones.

The attorney named the figure. The client wrote a check for the sum named, and Jones accepted it. The next day he learned from the bank the check was worthless. The signer had never had an account at that bank, Jones was told.

French National Gems Are Well Protected

The ease with which the robbery at Chantilly was committed, in which the Grande Coud was taken, may recall to many tourists that the French crown jewels, including the great Regent diamond, considered by many the finest in the world, are exposed in the Louvre in a similar showcase, apparently equally unprotected.

No such simple means as were used at Chantilly will enable any one to escape with the jewels in the Louvre, however. There they lie in glass showcases during the day, stared at by hundreds of casual wanderers.

The Regent diamond alone is said to be worth $3,000,000. Near it is the Mazarin diamond and with them the great dragon-shaped ruby, Cote de Bretaque, cut for Mme. De Pompadour. The crowns of Napoleon and Charlemagne sparkle with fortunes in precious stones. Down the center of the great room, the Galerie d'Apollon, the most gorgeous in the Louvre, is a whole line of similar cases loaded with precious jewels from all ages, many of them presented by the late J. Pierpont Morgan. Sardonyx and jasper, lapis lazuli, pearls, diamonds, emeralds, objects of rock crystal and finely worked gold make a glittering array.

What more simple than for determined bandits to force their way in at night in the best American fashion and make a haul.

But should they try it the bandits would be mystified. They would find the room bare except for unwieldy busts of forgotten emperors and vases weighing as much as an ordinary "burglar-proof" safe.

For at night the wide glass cases containing the more precious jewels—all that a robber would covet—disappear into cunningly devised vaults built under the floor. And few are the bandits who could work the machinery which brings the cases into sight again for the next day's tourist rush.—Guy Hickok in the Brooklyn Eagle.

Attaining Peace

DECORATED RINGS
FOR BRIDE AND GROOM

The growing popularity of the Double Ring Ceremony is unquestioned. It's not a new fashion. It's simply the reappearance of a very old one—changed for the better, as you would expect. Two Rings—one for the Bride, the other for the Groom, are necessary and it is essential that these rings should, by their very design, carry the sentiment of the occasion down through the coming years. We have very beautiful designs on display.
